

Impact of weather on artillery accuracy

Understanding how the atmosphere affects artillery requires thinking in three dimensions – not just surface conditions. Here are examples of how wind can create significant targeting errors in long range artillery fire.

A. Deflection error

B. Range error

